DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restriction

1. Applicant's election with traverse of species I in Paper No. 6 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that there is no undue burden in examining all of the claims since a generic claim exists. This is not found persuasive because the numerous species include non-obvious variants between each other which presents a burden to the examiner in both search and examination of the claims, and especially since the claims of the different species would likely require numerous/individual prior art references for each of the different species which is a burden during the search process.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

2. Claims 5-15 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in Paper No. 6.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Saitou.

Saitou (Figs. 17-18) teaches a microwave (i.e. high frequency) circuit including: the device/circuit is on a substrate (i.e. the device is an integrated circuit); a main circuit having a transistor (10) (i.e. an active element) and an output line (20); a filter block (21) and a capacitor (22) (i.e. a passive element) can be considered (i.e. an arbitrary nomenclature) a circuit block; a bonding wire connects a first pad (of the main circuit) and a second pad connected to the circuit block (see Fig. 18, the bonding wire (L) connects the two pads) (Claim 1) (also see Col. 6, lines 4-8); and an input terminal is at the gate of the transistor and the transistor and first pad are between the input and output terminals (Claim 2). Note that it is inherent that the impedance of a capacitor decreases with the increase of the input frequency since impedance of a capacitor is related to the inverse of frequency (Claim 3).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 4 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Saitou does not teach that the total length of an interconnect and the wire is a quarter wavelength of the input signal.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
